FIFTH GRADE students had their first ambassador event on FRIDAY September 22nd. Thank you to our AMAZING parent volunteers! We couldn't have done our event without each one of you! Our students learned about meeting and greeting (introducing themselves with eye contact and a firm handshake); writing thank you notes; asking intelligent questions (carrying on a conversation); how to navigate a reception line at a party; and how to be an excellent party guest. We had a wonderful time. Be sure to ask your student all about it!

*COLLEGE FAIR UPDATE:

Due to the broken pipe and the re-arranging of the ELC while that is all fixed, we will NOT do College Fair this year. (If you were interested in volunteering for that, we can make arrangements for a classroom visit to YOUR child's teacher.) However, next year we will be back on track to do our fair! Thank you for your understanding.

 Love and Logic  Amen University

Do you ever feel like your child's cell phone, game console, or computer has taken over your home? These devices can be wonderful tools for communication, learning, and healthy enjoyment, but they can also become dark and destructive without the necessary parental supervision and limits.

Although the basics of parenting remain the same, issues involving technology have left many parents wondering what limits are appropriate, how to hold their children accountable for misuse of technology, and how to help kids learn the decision-making skills required to make healthy technology choices when they leave home.

There's good news! Even though these modern issues are very challenging, we can achieve success by applying some age-old parenting truths:

- Focus mostly on their strengths rather than their weaknesses.
- Kids need limits.
- Limits are best set through actions instead of hollow threats.
- When kids make poor decisions, they need to experience natural or logical consequences.
- Consequences are always more effective when provided with loving empathy.
- Our kids will learn how to live their lives by watching us.
- Remember to register today and we'll show you how to handle their digital behavior—without creating massive power struggles and rebellion.

If this is a benefit, forward it to a friend. Our goal is to help as many families as possible.
